SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON WOMEN'S SAFETY AND ACCESSIBLE POLICING:

The Special CP issued important directions to further strengthen the effectiveness of these police booths, particularly the Pink Police Booths:

- Installation of Nirbheek Complaint Boxes: Dedicated Nirbheek complaint boxes should be provided at the booths to facilitate the submission of complaints and grievances by women visitors.
- QR Code-Based Complaint Registration: QR codes should be prominently displayed to enable women to register complaints conveniently through digital means.
- Deployment of Pink Scooties: Pink Scooties should be attached to the Pink Police Booths to strengthen women-centric patrolling, ensure greater police visibility and facilitate prompt police response in nearby areas.
- Enhanced Police Presence: Special emphasis should be placed on regular patrolling around colleges, educational institutions, markets and other areas frequented by women and girls.
- Community Participation: Regular interaction with students, faculty members, RWAs, MWAs and Police Mitras should be encouraged to strengthen police-public coordination and ensure timely identification and resolution of safety concerns.

The Special CP reiterated that women's safety, accessible policing and public confidence must remain central to police functioning. He stressed that police booths should serve not merely as physical structures but as active points of public assistance, grievance redressal and community engagement. The programme was attended by college authorities, faculty members, students, RWA/MWA representatives, Police Mitras, ACsP, SHOs and other police personnel of East District.

Through these initiatives, East District Police reaffirms its commitment to proactive policing, improved public accessibility, community partnership and creating a safer environment for all citizens, particularly women and girls.
