Message

Satish Golchha
Commissioner of Police, Delhi

Greetings!

The month of March was marked by the festivities of Holi, Id-ul-Fitr, Chaitra Navratra, Ram Navami and Mahavir Jayanti. These festivals are sacred occasions that illuminate our thoughts, purify our souls and bring a sense of peace and joy. We also remembered the courage and sacrifice of Shaheed Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev and Rajguru on their martyrdom day, whose legacy continues to inspire us.

On International Women's Day, Delhi Police strengthened its resolve to create a safer and more empowering environment for women through meaningful initiatives and outreach programmes.

Our teams have achieved significant success in tackling organized crime, human trafficking, drug networks and cyber fraud, reflecting professionalism, vigilance and technological preparedness.

Modern policing is as much about empathy and public relations as it is about enforcement. Whether it is raising awareness about emerging threats, supporting those in distress, or ensuring safe and disciplined roads, Delhi Police remains committed to serving citizens with integrity and compassion.

This edition of the newsletter captures the diverse roles of Delhi Police—from crime prevention and awareness to counselling support and traffic management—demonstrating our continued commitment to citizen-centric policing.

Jai Hind!
